A Will Dispute.

New Orleans, January 23 .- In the contest proceedings over the two wills, alleged to have been left by Mrs. Myra Clark-Gaines, between Mrs. Mary E. Clark-Gaines, between Mrs. Mary E. Evans, named as administrature, in the alleged oleographical will, dated Janu ary 5, 1885, and Wildea and Christmas, named as administrators in the nuncupative will, dated January 5, two witnesses testify that the first mentioned will was not in Mrs. Gaines' hand-writing and Dr. Holcombe testified that Mrs. Gaines was physically unable to write anything from the 5th to the 8th of January. Several witnesses testified to the belief that the alleged oleographic will is in the handwriting of Mrs. Gaines; others testify to the contrary. The deeds offered in evidence show that Mrs. Gaines, in 1881, disposed of the property mentioned in this will.

CHAMBERLAIN, Dak., January 23.-Yesterday, John Baker and an Indian named Crooked Foot, got into an altercation over some wood. The Indian shot at Baker three or four times, when the latter fired at Crooked Foot with a Winchester rifle, killing him. No fears are entertained of a rising among the Indians on account of the killing, as Crooked Boot was not esteemed among his people.

Normal school this afternoon, addressing the graduating class. In presenting the graduating class. In presenting the diplomas, he said: "I have gladly availed myself of the privilege accorded me of participating in the exercises connected with your graduation. It is a pleasing part allotted to me to present to you the evidence that you have enjoyed the educational advantages which terminate to-day.
The cause of education is so important in a country where intelligence and proper training in the people he at the foundation of the safety of the State, that no patriotic citizen can fail to be interested in an occasion of this kind, where an institution so useful and so distinguished as our class, fully equipped for the battle of life and for the discharge of the duties which await them as American men and women. Some of you will, I suppose, in the capacity of teachers, guide and direct those who will look forward to a graduation day, which shall like yours, be full of satisfaction and hope. You will owe to them a sacred duty, and your parent school has the right to demand at your hands, that her influence, which by your teaching will be enlarged and breadened, shall lose none of the salutary and beneficent character with which it rests on you at this hour, and those of you who shall follow other ways of life are in duty bound to do honor by achieving success and usefulness in the light of her inspiration.

We will not harbor the though to-day that the diplomas which, through life, you may pleasantly cherish." prutal Sullivan.

Boston, January 23.—John L. Sullivan became engaged in a free fight in an Elliot-street barroom last night, where he had been drinking with companions most of the afternoon. Sullivan was offended at a man named Hodgkins, whose opinion on puglistic matters differed from his own. After some words, Sullivan caught Hodgkins by both arms and with his head struck him between the eyes. Another of the party, named Deliere, at this point, swore at Sullivan, and said he was no man. Releasing Hodgkins from his grasp Sullivan, who was mad with rage and liquor, struck Deliere, felling him senseless. Friends of the latter interfered, and the tight became general. The bar-tender, named Maguire, drew a revolver. This and the arrival of a detail of eight officers from Station No. 4, restored quiet, but not until all present were more or less hurt. At sight of the officers, Sullivan was hurried from the saloon through a rear door. Deliere, who was badly hurt, declares he will procure a warrant for Sullivan's arrest.
